A ſecond Cock-lane Ghoſt has for ſeveral days and nights paſt, played its ghoſtly pranks at a lodging houſe, No 16, Newcaſtle-court, Butcher row. The difference between this and the Cock lane ſhadow is, that it appears in propria perſona.—One woman lodger declared, that ſhe was ready to make her davy, that ſhe had hold of his coat, and attempted to ſtop him, but ſhe inſtantly fainted a way.

This ridiculous buſineſs has made ſome noiſe in the neighbourhood, and the affair has been tranſferred to Bow-ſtreet to be inveſtigated.

The chimney ſweepers rpprentices decked in the gaudy and glittering paraphernalia of their order, had on Monday their annual fete in Mrs. Montague's garden; they ate their beef and pudding, and drank their ale with a guſto, that their ſuperiors might envy, and after having enhaled copious draughts of Britiſh Burgundy, received their yearly fee of a ſhilling each, without thoſe degrading conditions which being ſometimes tacked to the annual fees of our high characters, give their ſalaries ſtrong ſymptoms of bribery and corruption.

His majeſty has been very ſucceſsful this ſeaſon as a grazier, having fed ſome well-bred Herefordſhire Oxen up to the weight of 175 ſtone on the average, and for which he obtained the top market prices.

A new creation of Peers takes place immediately on the prorogation of Parliament; and the following gentlemen are to receive that honour, viz. Mr. Pierrepoint, ſir John Rous, Lord Broome, ſon of Marquis Cornwallis, the hon. Charles Townſhend, ſir Francis Baſſet, the earl of Galloway, Mr. M'Kenzie of Seaforth, &c. &c.

The diſſolution of parliament is ſhortly expected: Candidates are making their uſual profeſſions, and Borough-Jobbers their uſual offers. Amongſt other curious advertiſements on this occaſion, we read the offer of A PERPETUAL SEAT IN PARLIAMENT—that is, of a borough in the Weſt of England, "which contains one hundred and fifty Electors: as the town has lately been conſumed by fire, and three fourths of the electors are poor indigent people, it is preſumed that the building 70 or 80 cottages, of about 40 ſhillings per year rent, would effectually ſecure a ſeat for the Borough."—The adverti ſer very properly adds, "this will be an excellent ſpeculation for monied men." Some of the loan-contractors ſurely cannot do better than make the purchaſe, as they may probably indemnify themſelves, by the profits of a future loan, and Mr. Pitt will, we doubt not, remember every exertion of this kind with becoming gratitude.

About 70 men of the 20th regiment landed at Plymouth on Tueſday laſt from on board a tranſport lately arrived from the Weſt-Indies. Many of them are in an unhealthy ſtate. They are the remains of 700 fine fellows, who have been thus reduced by the ravages of the yellow fever.

A ſtrange accident happened on Monday laſt, in Blakeney near Manchester. The friends of a deceaſed perſon went up to the room to take the uſual farewell before the coffin was ſcrewed down, when the floor gave way, and the living and dead were precipitated to the lower apartment! The amazement and terror on this occaſion may be better conceived than deſcribed.

A few days ſince a lady loſt her purſe, containing 4000l. in Bank notes by pulling out her handkerchief juſt as ſhe left the bank, and has not yet recovered it, though ſhe liberally adverti ſed that a moiety of the whole ſum ſhould become the property of the perſon who found it!

The Miniſter and the Brewers have had another interview on the ſubject of a Beer tax: but what with his ifs and their BUTTS, ſo many ſtumbling blocks were thrown in the way of negociation, that the conference ſoon broke off abruptly without any ſatisfaction being gained on either ſide.

By the following Letter it would appear as if forged Bank Notes of England had been ſent to France.

Head Quarters, Rennes, 15 Germinal.

The General in chief adviſes his fellow-citizens, that the notes of the Bank of England circulated here, are counterfeit, and as falſe as the aſſignats of Quiberon, and the Louis given to Stofflet.

The humanity of the Court of Common Pleas was on Monday ſolicited for a poor man, who has been kept in Fleet priſon, for twelve years for the fees.—Good God is this a land of humanity?

A very ſerious diſpute has taken place between the Duke of Norfolk and Lord Malden, relative to the canvaſs which has taken place at Leominſter. It appears, that an agreement between the agents of theſe Noblemen had been entered into, for the purpoſe of putting a ſtop to thoſe diſgraceful ſcenes of riot and drunkenneſs which had lately taken place at Leominſter. Lord Malden not only charges the agents of the Duke of Norfolk with an infraction of this treaty, but in a letter to his Grace, dated the 12th of April, ſays, that he conſiders him as perſonally anſwerable for thoſe tranſactions which he had already cenſured in terms ſo ſtrong.

In conſequence of the above mentioned diſpute, the Duke of Norfolk arrived expreſs in town on Saturday morning, and, after making ſome neceſſary arrangements with his Solicitor, he inſtantly ſent his friend, Capt. Wombell, with a meſſage to Lord Malden. Lord Malden immediately referred Captain Wombwell to Capt. Taylor, of the guards; and theſe gentlemen, as ſeconds, appointed a rendezvous at five o'clock that evening, near Paddington, on the Edgeware road, where the parties accordingly met. Having taken their ground, and the word being given by one of the ſeconds, they fired without effect. The ſeconds then thought proper to offer their interference, and, in conſequence of a converſation which paſſed while the parties were on the ground, a reconciliation took place.

Laſt week at Winchester, Mr Peter Woolbridge, a miller and mealman, was fined by the magiſtrates of that city, for neglecting to deliver a declaration that he would return a juſt account of the corn he ſhould buy, 2l. for neglecting to make a due return, 1l. and for delivering a falſe return, 10l. by which falſe return the magiſtrates were compelled to ſet the aſſize of bread at 2s. 1d. inſtead of 16d. the half-peck loaf. The above ſeveral fines were laid out in bread, and diſtributed to the poor, and the effigy of the miller was carried through the city, and conſigned to the flames with every mark of deteſtation.

Laſt week were committed to Fiſherton Goal, Salop, John Maſſin, and John Dyke, labourers to William Barnes, of Endford, "there to remain and be corrected, and held to hard labour, for the ſpace of one calendar month, having been convicted before two magiſtrates of ill behaviour. "in neglecting to threſh out grain in a good workmanlike manner, being duly employed ſo to do."

A little decency, one might have hoped, would have prevented the duke of Norfolk and lord Malden, from bringing their electioneering tricks before the public. The former is in oppoſition, the latter a miniſterialiſt, but both ſeem to have forgotten, that it is contrary to the laws of the land for a Peer to have any thing to do with Elections. It may perhaps be replied, the practice is common: the greater then is the ſhame. The duel which cloſed the above quarrel, ſerves for a further proof, that there are noblemen on both ſides, who are equally regardleſs of the laws of GOD and of their country. Cambridge Intelligencer.

COUNCIL OF FIVE HUNDRED.

Sitting of the 20th Prairial.

A meſſage from the Directory informs, that Marceau follows the example of the army of Italy—That of the army of the Sambre and the Meuſe has opened the campaign by two victories.

On the 12th Prairial the Republican army attacked the enemy at the Hundſruck, and drove them from all their poſitions. Generals Marceau and Championet, have executed with ſkill and bravery the orders of the commander in Chief, Jourdan.

Another army on the right bank of the Rhine marched to the Seig, and completely routed the Auſtrians, who, reduced to the neceſſity of abandoning this poſition, retreated towards Alterkirken, to which place they were purſued. The enemy loſt 2,100 men, of which 1000 are priſoners.—General Kleber and Moreau commanded the army.

Extracts from the Courier De L'Egalite.

PARIS, 30th Floreal.

We have read the juſtificative memorial of Drouet; it is entitled, "Drouet, repreſentative of the people, to the Legiſlative Body.—Printed by Vatier, and ſold by Louvet, at the Palais Royal, and in the ſtreets.—Drouet mentions that at the time of his arreſt, he was in a private houſe with Ricords, Laignelot, Dalte, and two other citizens, whom he did not know, with an intention of breakfaſting with thoſe known and unknown, and of conſulting them reſpecting a letter which he intended writing to the Executive Directory. It is pleaſant enough that the firſt converſation which a perſon in a public character, and of ſo high a ſtation as a legiſlator ſhould have with perſons, with whom he was unacquainted, ſhould be upon a ſubject ſo important.

After this frank declaration, Drouet ſpeaks of his patriotiſm, his ardent love for liberty, equality, &c. "From the age of ſixteen," ſays he, "the period at which I began to think, my heart was inflamed with the moſt ſublime love for liberty, and for the political equality of citizens in the ſocial order. My head was filled with the principles of Rouſſeau, Mably, Raynal, &c. in truth I had an innate aptitude for philoſophical principles; I burned to ſignalize my zeal, and I waited but for an opportunity."

It appears that Drouet has loſt part of his philoſophical memory in riding poſt, for neither Rouſſeau, Raynal, or even Mably, who at the age of 16, he certainly could not underſtand, have ever ſaid any thing in their abſtract theories, that reſembled the principles put in action, by the conſtitution of 1793. The ſyſtems which they have advanced are ſo far from having that popular tendency, that they would at this day be regarded as a counter-revolution. What a rage theſe demagogues have for reſting for ſupport upon Raynal and Rouſſeau! Senſeleſs Beings! ye have never read them! Every page of their writings contains your condemnation.

After having ſpoken of the conſtitution of 1793, as a maſter-piece of the human mind, after ſaying that the idea of knowing that his country was ſovereign and free by that conſtitution, (to wit, aſſaſſinated, burnt and devaſtated) conſoled him in his long captivity in Auſtria, he thus expreſſes the emotions of his indignant patriotiſm, when free and returning into France, he read the conſtitution of 1795. "Alas, cried I, in the preſence of my colleagues, Quinette and Lamarque, and General Bournonville, "it was not worth while to make ſo many ſacrifices, to ſhed ſo much blood, to return to a ſyſtem which bears ſuch a reſemblance to the government of our moſt cruel enemies. Here is an upper houſe and a lower houſe, there is nothing wanting but a king," &c. Still when he had arrived in France, Drouet changed his language when he found that the patriots had been the firſt to accept the Engliſh conſtitution, and that the Directory appeared to be endeavoring by every means to raiſe them from the humiliation into which they had fallen ſince the 9th Thermidor. But yet as in a few months every thing appeared to him to be changed, he became ſo indignant, that he was determined to retire into obſcurity, and to ſend in his reſignation; a project he was about executing when he was arreſted.

But if we read the confeſſion of faith of Drouet, reſpecting thoſe whom he called patriots, it will eaſily convince the moſt incredulous of the preſent plots of thoſe pretended patriots of their future deſigns: In fine, of the plot which that ariſtocratic league, the moſt cruel that has ever yet appeared upon the earth, deſigns for France. "Still the patriots exiſt in great numbers, the remembrance of their former glory, ſhame at ſeeing themſelves eclipſed by thoſe who were concealed during the revolution, the evils which they have experienced, and the miſery which overwhelmns them, are ſo many oaths of hatred, which excite in their ſouls indignation, and a deſire of vengeance.

"The violent meaſures which government may take, will only ſerve to delay for a while the burſting out of thoſe paſſions, which are now ſuppreſſed. In vain will they hinder the union of citizens—In vain, will they engage on their ſide the moſt celebrated Journaliſts, it will not diſſolve the ſentiments which unites all the patriots from one end of the Republic to the other—They will ſtrive all their lives to ſeize again the authority which they have loſt, and for one who ſhall periſh in the attempt, a victim of his zeal, thouſands will preſs forward to avenge him." Still Drouet acknowledges, that their influence is gone. He wiſhes then "that they would riſe at once in maſs; that they would take with them their moveable property, their proviſions, their inſtruments and their arms; that they would throw themſelves headlong towards the frontiers of the Republic; that they would abandon a country which hates them; and that they would ſpread themſelves like an overwhelming torrent, over the fertile countries occupied by the enemies of their mother country.—"It is there only, that they could in truth lay a foundation for the worſhip of the DEMOCRATIC TRINITY, LIBERTY, EQUALITY and FRATERNITY.

Mr. COWAN,

IN reading over a late paper, I met with the following addreſs to the people of the United States. As the ſentiments and warning it contains are applicable to the citizens of our diſtrict, as well as to thoſe of other diſtricts in the Union, I requeſt you, Sir, to publiſh it in your Herald, for the attentive conſideration of our fellow-citizens.

I am, Sir,
your humble ſervant,
A SUBSCRIBER.

July 22, 1796.

TO THE PEOPLE OF THE UNITED STATES.

THERE are prevailing in this country two parties of very oppoſite ſentiments. But without tracing them through all the diſtinctions by which they have reſpectively been known, it is ſufficient to obſerve, and it is greatly important for every citizen to be informed, that one party is exerting all its endeavors to involve the United States in the calamities of war, and that the other party is wiſely, and I truſt ſucceſsfully, employed in preſerving our peace and happineſs. To men, well acquainted with the true ſituation of our public affairs, this information is unneceſſary; but too many of the people are inattentive to political objects, and appear unconſcious of their danger. Being themſelves in the poſſeſſion of all the bleſſings which a good government wiſely adminiſtered has beſtowed, they do not imagine that turbulent and ſeditious men ſurround them, and labour to deſtroy their repoſe. And yet the better to deceive them into this fatal ſecurity, theſe turbulent and ambitious men borrow the language of patriotiſm, and hypocritically aſſume the character of patriots. But theſe bleſſings, dear and intereſting as they are, are held at preſent by nothing but a thread: For while the war rages in Europe, be aſſured the ſituation of this country will remain imminently critical. The continuance of that terrible war, famous for the deſtruction of man, keeps alive the hopes of this malignant party; and they ſtill expect, by artifice and fraud, to make us partake in all its horrors.

Let thoſe, then, who are really the friends of peace, look around them, and make themſelves inquiſitive about the temper and character of every candidate for office: The enſuing elections for members of the Houſe of Repreſentatives in Congreſs will require all the caution and fortitude of which the human mind is capable. Citizens, be careful how you diſpoſe of your ſuffrages—Paule for a moment, and conſider how you turn out, and how you put in. Inquire minutely into the public conduct of thoſe who have ſerved you already: Do not judge of them by this or that particular inſtance, but by the general tenor and complexion, of their political actions. If you find that your member has ſided with the partizans of war, and has ſought to "ſtop the wheels of government" and embarraſs the honeſt views of our worthy Preſident, turn him out without reſpect to his perſon, and elect the friend of peace. If on the contrary your preſent member has invariably ſupported the meaſures of peace, and united his endeavors to preſerve amity between the United States and other nations, be ſure to run no hazard—be ſure to reelect him; you are certain by repeated trials that he is a friend to your proſperity and happineſs; and from the proofs he has given of his firmneſs and fidelity you may ſafely depend upon his future exertions for the ſame deſirable ends. By a change, the proſperity of our country may be hazarded, and our rights and liberties may be ſwallowed up in the terrors of a ſanguinary revolution. But a prudent people, like a wiſe individual, ſhould put nothing ſo valuable at ſtake—They ſhould never give up a CERTAINTY for an uncertainty. Citizens, attend! Let PEACE be the watch-word of your ſafety.

FROM LATE PARIS PAPERS.

TRANSLATED FOR THE DAILY ADVERTISER.

PARIS, 28 Floreal, May 18.

Saint Quentin,* 16 Floreal.

Citizens, while we lived under a revolutionary government, while sans-culottism, denunciation, proscription, blood and death were the order of the day;—while our unhappy country was covered with crimes and with scaffolds, we then beheld among the constituted authorities, men without talents, without experience, without morals, and without probity. If, by chance, we found among them men of probity and virtue, we might say of them as in Virgil, Apparent rari nantes in gurgite vasto.

The people of Saint Quentin, wearied and fatigued with seeing themselves governed by such persons, tired of living under the yoke of these petty tyrants, have at length opened their eyes to their true interests. They have swept away the revolutionary vermin, those impure remnants of Jacobinism, who for more than 3 years past have, to the disgrace and sorrow of our city, tormented and driven to despair the honest part of the community.

These sans culotte magistrates have been dismissed with shame, and sent back to their shops, where, by spinning or carding wool, by working at the anvil, or last, by turning the grindstone, or spinning wheel, by driving the shuttle or the plane, they will more usefully serve the Republic, than by interpreting and publishing laws which they do not understand, and which the greatest part of them can scarcely spell.

We shall no longer behold them gorged with wine and brandy, going from the tavern to the town hall, and there while intoxicated, deliberating upon the sentiments, the liberty, the fortune and the lives of their fellow citizens. These men, more than immoral, have been replaced by citizens who are wise virtuous, prudent and enlightened; friends of the Republic, of the laws, of morals and of order.—This choice which does honor to the people of St. Quentin, has not had, citizen, the suffrages of our Jacobins and our blood drinkers—condemned by the order and express command of the sovereign people, to a painful and shameful insignificance, they have sworn by their red cap, and the names of Robespierre and Marat, that they will revenge themselves for the violence done to their patriotism; for these gentlemen dare, like Carrier, Joseph Le Bon, Collet D'Herbois and Co. to to call themselves patriots.

The blow soon follows the threat. One of them an ex advocate, ex sub-delegate, ex-attorney general, ex-bailiff, ex administrator of department, ex-royalist, ex-monarchist, ex roman catholic, ex-constitutional catholic, ex-deist, ex-deistical professor in the popular society of St. Quentin, &c. &c. has been directed by his worthy and right worthy colleagues, to denounce to the Executive Directory, the members of the administration of the military hospital, at Ferraques, and of course the municipality to whom the law has given the guardianship of those establishments. I have read the denunciation, and though it is expressed in general terms, it plainly points out the victims they would wish to sacrifice.

Under the reign of Maximilian Nero Robespierre such a denunciation would have been sufficient to conduct to the guillotine the directors of the hospital and the municipality who were to watch over them.

It is with infinite pleasure I render to the Executive Directory that justice which they merit.—They would not judge without the knowledge of the cause. Commissioners were sent to St. Quentin with orders to inform themselves on the spot, and to make their report, arrived at the town-hall, they brought the accuser in the prefence of the accused, and in a public sitting they caused the act of denunciation to be read, which was signed by Colliet, and with his mark. Language fails me to paint to you the lengthened visage of the Jacobin denunciator; he sweat blood at every pore, while the accused, strong in the testimony of their own confidence, preserved that calmness and serenity which are the attendants of innocence.

One of them, however, more animated than the rest, was about to let his stick fall upon the large shoulders of the patriot Colliet, but upon more mature reflection he contented himself like the rest of his colleagues, with leaving the denunciation and the denunciator to the contempt and indignation of the people. From the enquiry of the commissioners it follows, that the conduct of the municipality and of the officers of police and of health, attached to the military hospital of Ferraques is free from the smallest reproach; that they have all paid to the sick, wounded and convalescent soldiers, the most pointed cares and unremitted attention, and that the chameleon Colliet is a vile denunciator, and a noted calumniator. Of all these faults they have made a statement, which master Colliet has been obliged to sign, after having received from the commissioners a sharp admonition, and those just reproofs which he merited.

Be pleased, Citizen, to give my letter a place in your useful journal. We cannot make too public the conduct of the representatives who compose the public directory. They desire justice, and in rendering it they will cause the Republic to be beloved.

ARMY OF THE RHINE AND MOSELLE.

May 18.

Desertion is very great among the Austrian troops. Scarce a day passes that from twelve to twenty do not arrive within the compass of a brigade. In general they appear but little attached to the cause of the Emperor; whether it is on account of their great fatigue, their little success, or the fear of a new campaign, or rather a continuation of the war with the Turks. Whatever the cause may be, it concerns us but little; but if their forces are thus diminished we shall soon force them to an honorable peace.

MANHEIM.

Upon the arrival of the Pretender, alias Louis XVIII. at the army of Conde, he wrote to Field Marshal Wurmser the following letter;—"I have the pleasure to inform you that I have arrived at the army of the French emigrants, resolved to fight with them and at their sides, in the most just of causes which may it please heaven to favor. Your excellency need not suppose that I have the smallest intention of making the least alteration in the command, or to supersede either the Prince of Conde or General Latour, both of whom have acquitted themselves with so much courage and ability. No! I wish as a soldier to partake with that brave corps in the dangers and toils of the war, and under the orders of your excellency, and those two generals, to make the campaign in the capacity of a simple soldier."

Extract of a letter from Bourdeaux, 20th Floreal, 9th May.

A captain of a privateer named the Adventure, arrived from Cayenne, relates the following circumstance:—The negroes of the city and country stirred up by some wretches, had agreed to murder nearly all the whites on Friday:—the day was not however definitively fixed, but might be postponed or delayed according to circumstances. Those of the city were to make themselves master of the fort, and inform the others of that event, by firing thirteen cannon.

The Privateer Adventure, arrived at Cayenne, the Wednesday before, and saluted the fort with 9 cannon—The fort answered it by 3, and they replied with one—The whole making the number 13. The Negroes of the country deceived by the 13 cannon, which they took for the signal agreed upon, ran in crowds to the city armed with all sorts of Iron utensils they could procure. They were however vigorously repulsed by the garrison, the inhabitants, and the crew of the privateer. The Negro chiefs have acknowledged the plot; but the white chiefs treat it as a chimera, waiting a better opportunity. This happened in Nivos last.

Mr. AMES.

LANCASTER, July 29.

[From a Correspondent.]

On Monday last the celebrated orator and patriot, Mr. Ames, (of Massachusetts) arrived in Lancaster. He has been on a tour to the southward for the benefit of his health, and it is with pleasure we find that he is considerably recruited since the rising of Congress. On Tuesday a number of gentlemen of the borough gave a handsome dinner at Mr. Slough's to this American Cicero. On Wednesday morning he proceeded to Philadelphia, from whence in a few days he will depart for Massachusetts.

COOPERSTOWN. (N. York,) July 28.

We have this week closed the celebrated Speech of Mr. Ames—It has, already passed 4 or 5 editions—we feel pleasure in enriching the pages of the Herald with sentiments of genuine federalism—Mr. Ames has concentrated the force of all the potent arguments, offered on the floor of Congress in favor of the Treaty; and has immortalized them, by blending them with his own—His speech ought to be preserved by every freeman, who wishes well to his country; as it will furnish them with a fund of political knowledge, at the small expence of a few hour's reading—Whatever may have been the celebrity of the other ornaments of our national representation; we presume none will envy the particular notice taken of Mr. Ames; or endeavor to deprive him of that applause which is due from a generous and grateful people, to one of their best Patriots.

"Many Patriots have spoken excellently, but thou excellest them all."

FORT WASHINGTON.

On the 8th inst. departed this life Major JOHN MILLS; his military services in the revolutionary war of America, and the successful campaign of the Legion in which he has most reputably discharged the important duties of Adjutant-General, had rendered him generally known and respected: common acquaintance, and all observers knew his worth and have acknowledged his merit, but by those to whom he was best known, he will be most lamented. He was interred from the dwelling of the Territorial Secretary (where he made his exit) with military honors; and a very general attendance of the citizens evince that they respected the Major's memory, and the sorrow of his friends.

NORFOLK, July 30.

Yesterday arrived here the schooner Flying Fish, Capt. Allison, 19 days from Antigua. The day he sailed, Capt. Coboon, of the brig Corn Planter, arrived there from Guadaloupe, where his vessel had been carried in, and vessel and cargo condemned. There had been several vessels taken into Guadaloupe, and condemned in the same manner. The Corn Planter was on her homeward passage from Demarara, when captured by a French privateer.

Spoke in lat. 20, 12, long. 65, the schooner Mercury, from this port, bound to Antigua, out 18 days; all well.

The brig Janet, Whitbee, from this port, arrived at Antigua the 12th July.

The Eliza Leamy, Barron, was to sail for this port (via St. Thomas's) four days after the Flying Fish.

Extract of a letter from Wilmington (N. C.) to a gentleman in this town, dated July 18.

"A small French privateer has carried into Cape-Fear river, a ship and brig, belonging to the Jamaica fleet. They are not admitted to an entry. They are loaded with sugar and rum, and are estimated at 150,000 dollars value."

NEW-YORK, August 4.

To the Editor of the Minerva.

Staten-Island, August 1st, 1796.

SIR,

REPORTS of an alarming nature having spread through the country relative to the filthy state of New-York, I was led to enquire by letter how far those reports deserved credit, to which the following is an answer, and which, at my request, the author has consented should be made public.

RICHARD CHANNING MOORE.

New-York, July 20th, 1796.

SIR,

IT is true that a fever resembling the one which proved so great a scourge to our city the last year, made its appearance about Whitehall, and in the vicinity of the Exchange, early in this month; but fortunately for us, from a concurrence of happy events, the fever has entirely subsided. It had continued but a short time only, when it pleased a Gracious Providence, to send us hard winds, repeated thunder and lightning, inundations of rain, and cool weather. To these causes I think we may ascribe the suspension of a formidable disease which had began to shew itself amongst us. And should it return again, I have solid reasons to believe that it will not be extended beyond certain limits.

You may recollect that in the frequent conversations we have had on the subject of the last year's fever, I have been uniform in my opinion, as to the causes of its production, namely, the accumulation of every species of filth and perishable matter, on the low, new made grounds on the south side of the city, and the abominable custom of filling up slips and docks with similar materials: I have said that such causes, aided by a moist atmosphere and a hot sun, would not fail of producing the most baneful exhalations, and that their effects must necessarily be felt by those who are more immediately exposed to their influence.

The proprietors of the lots on the east side of White Hall Slip, carried out a bulk-head the last spring, with a view to extend the dock farther into the river. The dimensions of the dock are very considerable; and a maxim invariably adopted by the owners of the docks, is, that the cheapest mode of filling up is the best; accordingly carts were employed to collect such dirt and filth as all large and populous cities furnish in abundance; and with materials of this description was the dock filled up, and to give greater salubrity to the mass, there were occasionally added, dead horses, dogs, &c. &c.

The exposure of White-Hall, and indeed the whole of the west end of the city must be considered as naturally extremely healthy. The winds during the warm season, are commonly from the sea, and arrive at this part of the town uncontaminated by passing over no unwholesome grounds. Yet such is the fact, that the poisonous exhalations which have abounded in that quarter during the warm weather in the beginning of this month, had so changed the air, that the inhabitants on the south side of Pearl street, between the Old-slip and White Hall, almost all concur in their testimony, that the disagreeable effluvia has frequently obliged them, especially in the evening, to close the windows on the south side of their houses, and in several instances gentlemen have assured us, that the offensive smell has been such as to occasion vomitings.

The wharf on which Mr. Delafield's stores are erected, is in a state truly execrable, and the slip on the right and on the left, is in a condition little better. These and such places are visited by the dock fever—the yellow fever if you please, that murderer of our own creating. Were the proprietors of these and such like docks, compelled to live in their vicinity, the evil would soon be remedied; but people of this description are generally secure from the ravages of disease, in the cooler retirements of the country.

The present exertions of the common council, in giving a new surface of wholesome earth to the dock at White-Hall, will no doubt be productive of the greatest advantages to the inhabitants of that part of the city; and if the same measures were extended to other parts of the town, there would be much less reason to apprehend a return of the dock-fever.

Thus sir, your questions are answered: you might have come to town with safety; you may come to town with safety. New York, as I have said before, may be rendered as healthy a city as any under the sun; and when a more rigid police prevails and the nuisances with which the city abounds are corrected, you will hear no more of the ravages of particular diseases. I am Sir, &c.

RICHARD BAYLEY.

Mr. FRANCIS,

(Of the New Theatre)

TAKES this opportunity of returning thanks to his ſcholars and to the public. Mr. Francis intends, on his return from Maryland, to open a public academy for dancing, upon a plan entirely new. He flatters himſelf that his attention to his pupils hitherto renders any promiſes of conducting his future ſchemes on the moſt liberal and ſtricteſt terms, of propriety, totally unneceſſary.

50,000 Tickets, at Eight Dollars,			400,000

N. B. To favour thoſe who may take a quantity of Tickets, the prize of 40,000 dollars will be the LAST drawn ticket, and the 30,000 the LAST but ONE:

And approved notes, ſecuring payment in either money or prizes, in ten days after drawing, will be received for any number not leſs than 30 tickets.

This Lottery will afford an elegant ſpecimen of the private buildings to be erected in the City of Waſhington—Two beautiful deſigns are already ſelected for the entire fronts on two of the public ſquares; from theſe prawings it is propoſed to erect two centre and four corner buildings, as ſoon as poſſible after this lottery is ſold, and to convey them, when complete, to the fortunate adventurers, in the manner deſcribed in the ſcheme for the Hotel Lottery. A nett deduction of five per cent. will be made to defray the neceſſary expenſes of printing, &c. and the ſurplus will be made a part of the fund intended for the National Univerſity, to be erected within the city of Waſhington.

The Drawing will commence as ſoon as the tickets are ſold off.—The money prizes will be payable in thirty days after it is finiſhed; and any prizes for which fortunate numbers are not produced within twelve months after the drawing is cloſed, are to be conſidered as given towards the fund for the Univerſity; it being determined to ſettle the whole buſineſs in a year from the ending of the drawing, and to take up the bonds given as ſecurity.

The real ſecurities given for the payment of the Prizes, are held by the Preſident and two Directors of the Bank of Columbia, and are valued at more than half the amount of the lottery.

The twenty four gentlemen who by appointment of the late Commiſſioners aſſiſted in the management of the Hotel Lottery are requeſted to undertake this arduous taſk a ſecond time on behalf of the public; a ſufficient number of theſe having kindly accepted, it is hoped that the friends to a National Univerſity and the other federal objects may continue to favor the deſign.

By accounts received from the different parts of the Continent as well as from Europe, where the tickets have been ſent for ſale, the public are aſſured that the drawing will ſpeedily commence, and that the care and caution unavoidably neceſſary to inſure a faſe diſpoſal of the tickets, has rendered the inor- ſuſpenſion indiſpenſable.

SAMUEL BLODGET.

§. Tickets may be had at the Bank of Columbia; of James Weſt & Co. Baltimore; of Peter Gilman, Boſton; of John Hopkins, Richmond; and of Richard Wells, Cooper's Ferry.
